A STAR BEHIND THE CLOUD.

No matter how dark the night;
No matter how dark the clouds may be,
Up in the shrouded sky,
Hidden from watching eye,
Glitters a star for me.

Silvery bright and clear.
Out in the fields of fadeless blue,
Heedless of cloud and rain,
Fearless of death and pain,
Golden stars in their silent sphere
Twinkle and burn for you.

Summer and winter the same;
No matter if storm-clouds surge and roll
Like waves on the frenzied sea;
In heaven's bright gallery
Twinkle and glow, with a quenchless flame,
These types of the soul!

No matter how dark thy life;
No matter how gloomy thy watch may be
'Mid sorrow, and pain, and care,
Still watching thee everywhere—
Back of the curtain of earthly strife,
Twinkles a star for thee!

TWO LIVES.

It was a slow and languid thrilling of his senses. So Vaughn Dare would have worded his sensation had he suddenly been called upon to do so, as, sitting on the broad piazza of the Ocean House at Newport, he found his attention rivited upon a woman's face of such rare beauty that his gaze was fascinated.

She sat quite near him, reclining in a low chair, her hands holding some soft fleecy work, which however had made no progress since he had first seen her.

The head, small and dainty poised on the exquisite, sloping shoulders, was covered with a luxuriant mass of dark red hair, which the wind blew in innumerable little waves floating above the low white brow. Her eyes when the long lashes lifted themselves from the carmine tinted cheek to betray their color, appeared to hold in their brown depths the same shade of red which was in her hair landing a sort of smoldering light, as though only needing some powerful impulse to have it burst forth in a flame. Her lips richly red and not too full, parted over the strong gleaming teeth. Every motion was replete with grace.

A little groupe of men surrounded her whose presence she seemed to suffer rather than court. She rarely laughed. Now and again she smiled—a faint languid smile—when her features would relapse into the old indifference.

"Too absorbed even to wish me good morning. Mr. Dare?" interrupted a voice.

There was no outward visible sign of the man's inward anathemus, as Vaughn, instantly rising, courteously doffed his hat to Mrs. Thorne—a young and pretty widow of but twenty-four.

"How glad I am to see you," she continued, holding out a white, plump little hand. "When did you arrive? I thought you still abroad."

"Lives there a man with soul so dead!" he answered, laughingly "You see, it was that sort of thing tugging at my heart-st-ing, that brought me back a penitent to my fatherland. I reached New York some time last week. Really it was too hot to keep any account of time, except as measured by the thermometer. As soon as possible, I came down here for a breath of fresh air. Reached here late last night, and already with a low bow "met my reward."

"Ah, I see you have not forgotten your habit of making pretty speaches! Fortunately, long ago I learned to estimate them at their proper value. But tell me did you find anything in the galleries abroad lovelier than Laura Stern's face? Have you met her?"

"I certainly have met with no greater miracle than the fact of one woman according to another her due meed of praise. Dare I respond? or is it merely a trap for the unwary? She is pretty—rather. You see I am timid, I do not know her. Will you present me?"

"With pleasure. Laura," having taken his arm led him over to where the girl sat, "this is my old friend Mr. Dare Mr. Dare—Miss Sterne."

The red brown eyes lifted themselves for a moment to his face, the carmine burned an instant to a deeper stain on the beautiful cheek.

With a musical laugh, Mrs Thorne glided away; the other men one by one followed suit, and the new intruder held undisputed possession of the prize.

The morning was a precursor to the days that followed. It grew to be a recognized thing that Vaughn Dare had stepped into the foremost place, and that when he approached, others must fall back.

There were many who had made desperate struggles to gain that which seemed to fall to him by by a sort of unconscious right. He had drifted to Newport without purpose or intent. He found himself held there as a vessel to its moorings; but he knew his anchorage lay in Laura Sterne's smile.

How it lit up the lovely face! Was it only his fancy that it always waited his coming to first dawn in the wonderful eyes, and then to grow and deepen until the red lips caught it.

"Vaughn Dare is a flirt," said Dame Gossip.

"It is diamond cut diamond," said Dame On Dit.

"There is a fiance awaiting in Gotham, asserted Dame Rumor.

But spite of the three ancient and worthy (?) dames, the lovers wended their way content.

Were they lovers? had they paused to put the question to themselves? Sometimes they would spend hours almost without words, when Vaughn throwing himself on the sand at Miss Sterne's feet, would let his eyes rest dreamily on the perfect face, on which neither sun nor wind seemed ever to rest but with loving impress.

"Have you a picture of yourself?" he asked her, one day.

"No," she answered "I have never had a photograph taken. Strange is it not?" I have always hated the idea of having a cardboard representation of myself in the possession of one's five hundred friends. If one's picture could be held by one—the one for whom you have had it drawn or painted, one whom you knew would value it as a counterfeit of the real– it may be different."

Did she expect that he would answer "I want it! I would be that one!"

Silence fell for a moment between them; then Vaughn sprang to his feet, and offering her his arm, they walked silently back to the house.

That night, as they had finished a waltz together. he whispered in her ear:

"I am tired of all these people. I want to be alone. May we not go up for awhile into your parlor?"

"Certainly," she replied, her mood always falling in with his, and led the way, he following.

It was a pretty little room to which she had brought the stamp of her own individuality. The music from below reached them but faintly; the salt air from the ocean stirred the draperies from the window.

Without, the atmosphere was weary, oppressive, as though a storm were brooding. It seemed to weigh on Vaughn Dare's spirit.

He leaned out to look into the night to try if possible to shake it off. A faint scream roused him.

Miss Sterne had crossed the room to her escritoir; a breath of wind had blown the lace shawl she had thrown about her shoulders and fastened to her hair, directly across the flame of the lamp. It had instantly taken fire.

As instantly, Dare comprehended the danger. A table stood at his side, covered with some pretty dainty cloth. He dragged it off and threw it about her.

Scarce had sixty seconds, passed and the peril was over! She was unscorched, unmarred, but he still held her as he had caught her—close-wrapped in his arms—close-pressed to his heart.

One of his hands was severely burned. He did not even know it, until she caught and pressed it to her lips,

"For me!" she whispered, Vaughn, Vaughn! I love you—I love you! The life you have saved is yours,"

At her words he slowly opened his arms and released her from his hold, an ashen pallor creeping on his face.

She looked up at him in dim bewildered wonderment.

"What is it?" she questioned.

"Only that you have opened heaven to me, and I must turn away from its gates. Mad, blind fool that I have been not to see whither we are drifting. Laura I love you—aye, as you love me—and I am bound in honor to another woman.

"You mean that you have been engaged to—be—married all this time and I—Oh, what have I done?" covering her face with her hands and sinking back in her chair.

"Nothing," he replied, "but what the loveliest, purest of women might have done. Knowing no evil you thought none. I—"

"Leave me!" she cried springing to her feet. "Go to the woman who has the right to claim you. I make to heaven but one prayer—that I may never see your face again!"

But when he had obeyed her, she crouched down on the floor in her struggles to keep back the moans—aye and kissed the spot where his feet had rested.

Calm, silent, impassive all her life, he had opened the pent-up flood-gates of her soul, for this—for this.

* * * * * * *

We have made a mistake. Forgive me that my eyes have just opened to it, and that I ask you to release me from my bonds. I thought that I loved you but women do not always know their own hearts. I send you back your ring your letters. Send me back my broken pledge, and your forgiveness."

This was the letter from his affianced Vaughn Dare found waiting him in his room on his return to the city. This which fate had sent him in the moment of his need—this which raised the weight from his chest, and load from his brain—which made him a free man—free to woo and win the only woman, he knew, that he had every truly loved.

It would be a little difficult, perhaps to gain her forgiveness—to win anew her trust; but with such an end, and the knowledge that she loved him, he could not fail.

Why was it then that on the boat, returning, sleep forsook him? In the morning he would find her sitting, perhaps where he had first seen her. He could fancy the look of incredulity on the beautiful face as he approached, only to see it soften and die out under the eloquent passion of his words.

Ah, how he loved her! Now in the new sense of his freedom, he dared avow to his own soul how well.

But spite of all the night wore heavily away. Toward morning he sought his berth, but only to toss restlessly about, until the steamer touched her pier.

It was still early when he reached the hotel. A sudden chill seized him as he entered the office. The few standing around wore a sad, pitying look, he could not understand.

"You have heard the terrible news, Mr. Dare?" the clerk questioned.

"I have heard nothing," he abruptly answered.

"What you do not know? Miss Sterne was drowned yesterday while bathing. At first she seemed adverse to going in but they finally prevailed upon her The tide was very strong, but they say when it swept her beyond reach, she seemed to smile, as though she had no fear. She uttered no cry or moan, and must have lost consciousness almost immediately, for when the life-rope was thrown her—they hoped in time to save her life—she made no effort to grasp it. Her body was recovered last night."

"Take me to her!" Dare whispered in a hoarse changed voice.

It seemed as though he had known it all long ago as though he had lived in another life Walking as in a dream, with all trace of color fled from cheek and lips, he followed to the closed door where the man had left him. Then he opened it quietly and went in. The few watchers taking one glance at his awful face, rose and left him with his dead—ah, his own for time and eternity! Did she not still wear the smile upon her lips for him?

For her the struggle was over, What wonder that she had smiled as she felt the waters, more merciful than man, wrapping her in their embrace? What wonder that she cared not to grasp the rope which should snatch her back into the old agony of living?

On his knees before the exquisite form, Vaughn Dare wrestled with his anguish. Ah, they both had drifted with the tide—she into the still ocean of eternity, he into the bitter turmoil of the might have-been. Drifted—drifted with the tide men call living, and on its waves have been wrecked "Two Lives."

Papyri Sicily.

To ascend the Cyane is very much like making your way along a back water on the Thames, but with the emphatic difference that in place of osiers and the usual river plants and flowers, we have nothing but papyri. The men soon find that to use the oars is impracticable. They step out on the bank, harness themselves with ropes—still Thames fashion—and we are towed along, brushing our way through the tall papyri as well as we can. This long eyot is named after an English lady who brought it under cultivation—that is, covered it with papyri. Our guide plucked up one of the tall reeds, cut off a piece from the thick end, and showed us how he can convert it into paper by shaving it into narrow strips and laying the sections which he has thus peeled away across each other. To convert the material into paper fit for use, it needs only be pressed and dried. I had never seen the process of paper-making from the papyrus before, nor, indeed, the papyri growing. It is a long reed which runs to a great height, with a very graceful feathery top. Why the papyrus should grow with such great luxuriance at this particular spot and nowhere else, as the guide told us, in Sicily, or indeed, in Europe, is a question which, no doubt, Sir Joseph Hooker would readily solve, but it is quite out of my range of knowledge. I can only speak of the facts as I saw them. The next day we bought from the guide a specimen of his manufacture—papyrus paper, pressed and dried, yellowish in color, with the marks of the cross strips very distinct, but presenting a smooth surface. Ink does not run upon it. You could copy a manuscript, old or new, well enough upon the material.

Conundrums.

When is a wall like a fish? When it is scaled.

How does a stove feel when full of coal? Grateful.

Which of the reptiles is a mathematician? The Adder.

When is a boat like a heap of snow? When it is adrift.

When is a doctor most annoyed? When he is out of patients.

When is a literary work like smoke? When it comes in volumes.

Why is the letter G like the sun? Because it is the centre of light.

What is that which shows others what it cannot see itself? A mirror.

Why is the letter N like a faithless lover? Because it is inconstant.

How does a cow become a landed estate! By turning her into the field.

Why is whispering a breach of good manners? Because it is not allowed.

What is an old lady in the middle of the river like? Like to be drowned.

What word may be pronounced quicker by adding a syllable to it? Quick.

Why is a miser like a man with a short memory? Because he is always forgetting.

How does a sailor know there is a man in the moon? Because he has been to sea (see.)

Why is a fool in high station like a man in a balloon? Because everybody appears little to him, and he appears little to everybody.

Cigar Facts.

Speaking of Havana, says a New York correspondent, I may add a few facts concerning the cigar trade. New York purchases the most costly cigars in the world, and these, of course, come from Havana. Nearly 100 brands are known here, each of which has its admirers. These cigars are of high cost in their own market, but the price is enormously increased by the duty which is eighty per cent. Among the most noted is the Intimidad, which has been quoted by the importers at the trifling sum of $400 per 1,000. They have retailed at sixty cents apiece, but perhaps are now a little cheaper. The Henry Clay is another popular brand of almost the same value. They are imported in boxes each containing fifty, and a large number of these boxes are packed in one case. There are other fine cigars of more moderate prices, and if the reader wishes to observe a little closer economy, there is the Principal, which is only $200 per 1,000, while the Flora de Fumar is only one-half that price. They retail at twenty cents and are in steady demand, being. indeed, the most common cigar found at the leading hotels. One tobacconist says that it is impossible to equal an Havana cigar by any other manufacture. The attempt has been tried at Key West in the most careful manner, but has failed. They imported the finest tobacco from the valley of the Abajo (of which the best Havana cigars are made), but the Key West article proved inferior. Key West is so near Havana that (had the effort been successful) the duty would have been saved by making up the Havana leaf. Key West cigars are common in our market, but they never equal the imported article.

Queen Marguerite of Italy

Seems to be greatly beloved by the Neapolitans. They call her "the Marguerite of the Marguerites." Recently when she entered Naples, every window and doorway was adorned with her favorite flower—indeed the whole city looked like a bouquet of daisies. From Naples she went by water to one of the Mediterranean ports. On going on board ship she found that every one, from the Admiral commanding down to the common sailors, wore a boutonniere of marguerites, a delicate attention which greatly pleased the Queen. Her son, the heir apparent of Italy, bears as one of his titles that of Prince of Naples. When he was born that city presented the Queen with an exquisite cradle made of pale pink coral filled with the snowy petals of her own delicate flower. Queen Marguerite has lost much of the bright blond beauty which once rivalled the charms of the Empress Eugenie. She has grown a little stout, and her sad expression and a frequenty noticed redness of the eyelids gives emphasis to the rumor that she often weeps. All the royal beauties of Europe have had trouble. Eugenie, the Princess of Wales, and her pale, frightened sister, the "white dove" of the Russians, all know what sorrow is, and Queen Isabella, one of the ugliest women in Europe, has not had a happy life. It is said that she left Madrid in tears last month, when State reasons forbade Alfonso to ask her to extend the visit of ceremony she is allowed to make her native land once a year.

Fishing With Daniel Webster.

So you knew Webster personally, did you? said a reporter to an old man. Well! I suppose I might say so; though it is more than forty years ago when I went a fishing with him down Cut River into Marshfield Bay. Cod fishing we went." Only you two? No! Skipper Seth—somebody was along to manage the boat, bait the hooks, and pass things when wanted. I had never been codding and was green as a gosling at the business. 'Twas a splendid morning! Webster was dressed in an old gray suit wore a gray hat, and smiled all the way down the river, at me I suppose. He told me he knew my father before me, and if I ever made half as good a man I'd better be satisfied, or something to that effect. He was a good deal more social than you would take him to be seeing him at the Astor House on his way or at Washington in the Senate. I felt perfectly at home after he had caught the first fish. 'Twas just at daylight; and a haddock. He "weighed seven pounds in his own scales." This was Mr. Webster's joke, but we didn't have another; or a bite for more than a half an hour. There was a "halibout" about, Mr. Webster said, and if we didn't hook him we'd have to move down further toward Gurnet Neck. He hooked himself on my hook and the skipper got him into the boat, along with enough of Marshfield Bay to keep him alive for a month if we had not bailed the craft out. After this bites were frequent. Cod of all ages, haddock, sculpin, and a school of six mackerel came over the gunwale. Along about sunrise Mr. Webster put a green vail over his hat and face, and I did not see either again till we made a landing. He always wore a green vail fishing after sunrise. Soon after we caught a baby "halibout" Fletcher Webster came out to us in a small boat, and then the fun began. He brought with him little Dr. Choules, a settled Baptist minister at Newport, who the Marshfield people said worshiped Webster more than he did his Maker. That's no matter. He was the funniest little piece of laugh and grow fat Christianity I ever saw. He was proportioned like a pumpkin, and his face was as sunny as a ripe one. They brought something to take, and we all took. This had an immediate effect at both ends of the lines. Codfish seemed to want something, too. They bit like a house on fire, "Now Fletcher!" said Mr. Webster, "give us a little Lafayette." The "little Lafayette" the great expounder wanted was a rehearsal of Websters great speech of welcome to Lafayette. which can be found in Webster's works. and should be read by all men) A whacking big monster of the deep took hold of Fletcher's hook. "Give us a hand for a starter, Dr. Choules." said Fletcher, and slowly the capture came through the five fathoms of water. Just as the head of an enormous "halibout" appeared above the splash twenty feet away, Fletcher opened, "Il-lus-tri-ous stranger!"—suiting the action to the words—"Citizen of another hemisphere welcome to these shores!" and with a few hauls of concentrated Fletcher and Choules power the eel lustrious stranger was promptly landed in the boat. Dr. Choules proposed that we "take" again, and it was done as a purely sanitary measure. Good John E. Williams brandy from the ancient cellars of 1847 on Boston neck being used to conteract any unwholesome effect that might follow the dousing we all received while welcoming the illustrious stranger to our common platform. The larger the fish thereafter the larger the take, and we took a great many large ones of both descriptions before we up anchor and tried to head for home. Somehow or other we had not noticed that a strong wind over Marshfield salt meadows and right out of the mouth of Cut River had risen while we were taken the biggest, and instead of sailing back on the tack we'd come ont on, we were obliged to make one toward Duxbury. then "toward Boston, Quincy, Fall River, and Newport," as little Dominie Choules said often before we got through tacking, by driving plump into Plymouth harbor, twenty miles away, Lord! how that broad-breasted yawl bounced over the water and breasted Boreas and the billows. Fletcher said "Boreas was a bore and ass." "Rightly named!" chimed in little Choules. "If the Pilgrim Fathers," said the immortal defender of them and of the constitution; "if those godly ancestral heroes of Massachusetts had been driven against the stern and rook bound coast with such a vehement exhibition of Divine wrath and power———" "They wouldn't have landed without some swearing, I think," continued Fletcher. As it was, it was one of the wonders how we landed at all. In the general bobbing and bouncing, I had become as limp as a skinned eel; had thrown off all the pleasure and lots of other things besides, that I had enjoyed before the anchor was heaved, and was glad to wade ashore at a point a little to the southward of Plymouth Rock. Plymouth people were on their way home to their usual 2 o'clock dinners when we walked up the street and turned the right hand corner to reach and reinvigorate at the popular house with an Indian name, on the high road to Kingston. You ought to have seen Rev. Dr. Choules when he landed from the boat. He looked like a young robin after a seven days' storm. Exceedingly damp, though blazing from the eyes and from the depths of his inner consciousness with smiling thankfulness that we had not been upset in the middle of the bay and out of soundings. Mr. Webster maintained that godlike mien and carriage for which he was so justly celebrated. His green vail had been carried away in the storm, and that splendid appeared once more in its matchless glory. How we got back to Marshfield with our plunder from the sea I will tell at another more convenient period.

Fish Raising.

The cod, Spanish mackerel, striped bass and smelt have been heretofore the only sea fish whose eggs have been hatched by fish culturists, but the New York State Fish Commission has undertaken to establish fish hatcheries on Long Island, both fresh and salt water ponds, where it is expected that other varieties will be rapidly added to the list. Here is a matter in which the States and the United States mutually benefit and inspire each other, the United States Fish Commission yearly supply, while the several States can for themselves work out the suggestions it makes for either fresh or salt water farming.

Locusts.

Energetic measures against the locusts are being taken in Cyprus. Up to the end of October, 880 tons of their eggs had been destroyed, of which 270 tons were gathered in that month alone, and four or five months still remain for the collection. The rewards paid have been raised to £13 the ton; and the government, already spent £6,000 this year on the eggs, is prepared to expend £23,000 as soon as the insects are hatched in April and May on screened enclosures and pit traps, to be managed by 2,000 men.

Hospital Beats.

"There are a good many of the class called 'hospital dead beats,'" said the Superintendent of the New York hospital. "They make it a business, especially in winter, to go from one hospital to another with pretended ailments, content to lie in bed and be waited upon as long as we are willing to keep them. The women generally claim to be afflicted with hysteria. They will sometimes lie rigid as a corpse and pretend to be unable to move. I have known such a case to be cured by one bucket of ice cold water suddenly dashed upon the patient. The 'hospital beats' are generally familiar with Bellevue, where, from long experience. they have learned to dispose of such cases summarily, so that the old 'rounders' get tired of attempting their impositions.

"One of the most successful frauds I ever saw practised was by a girl of nineteen. She came here well recommended, and claimed to be afflicted with rheumatism. She gave her name as Mary Reed. She was so pretty, modest, and amiable that she soon became a favorite in the hospital. She was tractable and easily managed. As she recovered her strength she showed a desire to help other patients.

"One day a rather course man called to see her, and said she was his wife, and he wished to take her home when she got well. We were all surprised to discover that she was married.

Her story was that she had been at service with a wealthy family up the Hudson; that this man was the coachman. and she had married him; that soon after they were married her husband got out of employment, and in order to help him along she had come out to service.

"The girl's manner was so plausible, and she told her story with such a captivating simplicity, heightened by a pretty foreign accent, that we all believed her. As she got stronger she went out several times, saying she was looking for work.

"One of our patients was afflicted with erysipelas, and we had to isolate her in the cottage. Mary kindly volunteered to nurse the patient, and did so with a tenderness and assiduity that won her admiration. The patient got well, but communicated her disease to Mary who became very ill. At one time her life was despaired of.

"The visits of the coarse man ceased. Then another man came and claimed her as his wife. He was a Spaniard, and evidently a sailor. Our suspicion was aroused. His story was that he had met the girl at Gibraltar, where she was known as the daughter of a Spanish Jew; that she had come to this country with him, and that he supported her here, but that while he was absent on one of his voyages she had left him. He was willing, however, to forgive her and marry her, and they finally made up their disagreement and went off together. The Spaniard said that her sister was one of the favorite wives of the Emperor of Morocco, who had taken a great fancy to her and bought her from her parents."

To Warm the Girls.

A seal skin sacque costs fifty per cent more than it did five years ago. Seal skins have not been worn more than fifteen or eighteen years, Fashion and the discovery of new methods of preparing and dying, or first the latter and second the former, brought them into use. The seal fur, as seen here, is the inner coat. When on the back of the seal this fine fur is hid by coarse hairs, which are removed by a process of paring down the under side of the skin. The color of the fur as known to wearer is artificial. If the government had not taken measures to protect the seal new wearers of seal sacques would be few in a short time. The Shetland seals were once numerous. but have been exterminated. The Newfoundland seal is in market, but is inferior to the seal of Alaska. The islands of the Behring Sea are the only ones in the world where seal catching has great commercial importance.

From 1751 to 1870 the scientific world knew nothing in the regard to the history of the seal. The Smithsonian Institution did not possess a perfect skin and skeleton of the seal, although thousands of men and millions of dollars have been employed in capturing. dressing and selling fur skins for the last hundred years. The vast breeding grounds bordering on the Antarctic have been entirely depopulated. Between the years 1795 and 1821 1,232,274 seal skins were taken in the Pribylov Islands; between 1821 and 1842, 458,500 skins, and from 1842 to 1861, 372,000 skins. In the year 1868 the number of skins taken was 242,000. In 1770 only 9.965 were captured. During the last ten years the catch has been a little less than 100,000 per year. The whole number taken between 1796 and 1880 was 3,561,051 skins. The seal catching is done in June and July. After that time the fur begins to "shed" and is worthless. The natives are paid forty cents a skin for their labor.

The Conkling Scandal.

It may be very gratifying to Mr. Conkling to be able to say that he twice declined the honor of an appointment to the Supreme Court of the United States; it may be very pleasant also to Mr. Arthur to be able to compliment his friends by honorable appointments; but Mr. Arthur is doing himself no credit and the country no service by using the power of his office for the private gratifycation of his friends and the payment of his personal obligations.

Mr. Arthur is too prudent a man to fall into the error of appointing personal favorites to office without regard to their fitness. The nominations he has made have been of men well fited to the places for which they were designated, and had they been made in good faith they would not have challenged criticism. But Mr. Arthur did not nominate Mr. Conkling to the Supreme Court because he wished to fill the vacancy worthily and thought him the best man for the position, but because he wished to compliment and serve his political chief. It would have been very easy for him to ascertain whether Mr. Conkling would accept this appointment. Indeed, it was his duty to do so, and either he was very careless of official dignity or else he deliberately designed to use the most important appointment then within his gift to further the personal ends of a disappointed politician. Under the circumstances Mr. Conkling's appointment was an affront to the country and an insult to the United States Senate that would have been resented were that body capable of maintaining its own dignity.

It is not the first time that the President committed this offense. He did pecisely the same thing in the case of Ex-Governor Morgan. He either knew or could have known that Morgan would not become Secretary of the Treasury, and his nomination could have no other purpose than to pay off his own obligations and gratify his friend. For the nomination of Conkling there is even less excuse. If the resident did not know he could have learned in fifteen minutes that Conkling did not want the place. What he did want was the compliment of the nomination: the public distinction it would give him and the triumph of a confirmation by the Senate, where his former prestige has been overclouded. This accomplished, but not till then, Conkling declines the appointment. He has gained something—the gratification of his vanity at least—and lost nothing; the President has gained nothing, but has lost a great deal.

It was hoped that the scandal of employing the Presidential office for the distribution of personal reward and compliments had ended. Mr. Arthur seems disposed to revive it in a new and most objectionable form, and if his own self-respect do not forbid a repetition of the disgraceful trifling shown in the Conkling case, the self-respect of the Senate should compel it to teach the President the lesson that he need. The Government of the United States should be better employed than in complimenting clouded friends and giving certificates of character to defeated Stalwarts.

Lyooming County Solid for Hero Beaver.

WILLIAMSPORT, March 8.—The Republican county committee met in this city this afternoon and elected delegates tothe State Convention pledged to vote for General James A. Beaver for Governor. The following Representative delegates were elected by acclamation: H. M. Dieterly, C. W. Hill and John M. Bowman. E. P. Dietrick was unanimously elected Senatorial delegate, with power to select his own conferees.

CONKLING DECLINES.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The President has received from Ex-Senator Conkling his declination of the associate justiceship of the United States Supreme Court, to which position he was recently nominated and confirmed.

WAITING FOR DEATH.

The Situation of the People in Southern Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 9.—M. C. Harris, who was sent down to Desha county by Governor Churchville to aid in distributing government supplies to persons rendered destitute by the overflow, returnde yesterday. In an interview with a reporter he said that along the river front to Desha county, 100 miles in length, the destitution is beyond description. The water has reached an unprecedent height. Scarcely a farm house or residence on the bottom has escaped the inundation. The people have been compelled to build false floors in their houses, or to seek safety on higher lands, where, in rudely constructed camps of brush, boughs and cane, they sit and wait for starvation and death. It is appalling, and without government aid, liberally and quickly bestowed, there is no telling where it will end. Many persons have been feeding on the carcasses of drowned cattle. Personal investigation, as well as the assurances of respectable gentlemen, convinces Mr. Harris that not less than six hundred families, averaging six persons to each, in Desha county alone, are dependent upon the charity of the government. He believed it to be no exaggeration to place the gross number, old and young, at 3,500. The indications point to a long continuance of the overflow, the most sanguine hardly daring to hope for its subsidence before May.

ADDITIONAL GOVERNMENT AID.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The house committee on appropriations considered this morning the priposition to vote additional relief to the sufferers by the floods on the Mississippi river. General Floyd King, of Louisaina, and several other gentlemen from the flooded districts, addressed the committee and described the suffering existing in consequence of the overflow of the river.

A Gloomy and Graphic Picture

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 9.—The city is thronged with refugees from the overflowed districts. Governor Churchyille said he received this morning a number of letters from prominent men in the overflowed districts who draw a gloomy and graphic picture of the death and suffering around them. Ashley county reports one thousand persons on the verge of starvation, and Chidot and Desha counties have as many, if not more. There are thousands also in other counties in destitute circumstances. Relief boards are busy distributing rations at all available points. The work is going on as rapidly as could be expected, but the trouble is that there are so many needy that it will be almost impossible to supply their wants in time to prevent suffering, if not actual starvation.

Trouble Over a Woman's Funeral.

Special Dispatch to the Times.

ERIE, March 8.—A highly sensational scene occurred at Linesville over the corpse of Mrs. Maneely, a higly respected lady of the Spiritualist faith. The trustees of the Methodist Church offered the edifice for her obsequies, and Moses Hull, a spiritual exhorter, arrived from Buffalo to deliver the oration. Just before the hour set for the ceremony the Methodist pastor returned home and learning the use to which his church was to be put, refused to let the service go on. The trustees declared it should; the pastor threatened to resign and gained his point. The corpse was then conveyed to an infidel hall, followed by an imense crowd of church people and friends bent on attending the funeral.

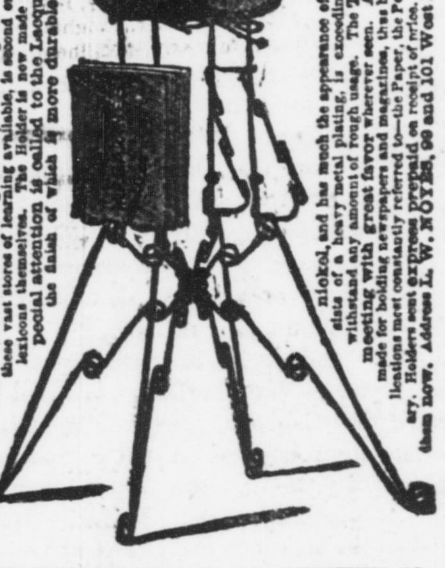
A PLACE FOR YOUR DICTIONARY,
A PLACE FOR YOUR NEWSPAPERS,
A PLACE FOR YOUR PERIODICALS,
And an ornament for your house, all in one,
THE NOYES DICTIONARY HOLDER.



A thousand dictionaries in out-of-the-way-places will not instruct, while a single dictionary, mounted in a Noyes Dictionary Holder, will instruct thousands. In fact, the Holder is the great helper of the great lexicons, and in making these vast stores of learning available, is second only in importance to the lexicons themselves. The Holder is now made in five styles, but especial attention is called to the Lacquered White Holder, the finish of which is more durable and brilliant than nickel, and has much the appearance of silver. This finish consists of a heavy metal plating, is exceedingly attractive, and will withstand any amount of rough usage. The Tilting Top Holder is meeting with great favor wherever seen. A neat attachment is now made for holding newspapers and magazines, thus bringing together the publications most constantly referred to—the Paper, the Periodical and the Dictionary. Holders sent express prepaid on receipt of price. Circulars free. Send for them now. Address L. W. NOYES, 99 and 101 West Monroe St., Chicago.

LEWIS REITER, A. B., Principal,
SPRING MILLS, PA.

CAMP,—the enterprising furniture man at Centre Hall, is to furnish Grenoble's new mammoth hotel at Spring Mills. This is what we call supporting home industries. But the truth is too, that Mr. Camp can do such a job just as well and cheaply as any other party in or outside of the county. His stock embraces every possible article in the furniture line, is well made and reasonable in price.

—A fine line of Family Bibles, Presentation Bibles, Photograph Albums Velvet Frames, French Vases, Beautiful Scrap Pictures, Paper Boxes, and a great variety of Fancy Goods generally Splendid S. School, Day School and Visiting and other Cards—all very cheap, at the Journal Store. tf

—The Evangelical Sunday School organized a missionary society on Monday evening. The following officers were elected: President—Rev. C. F. Gephart; Vice Presidents—A. J. Grove, W. K. Alexander; Rec. Sec.—Miss Mary E. Mauck; Cor. Sec.—Miss Ada E. Eisenhuth; Treasurer—Adolph Miller; Organist—Miss Cora V. Kreamer.

The society begins with sixty members and is increasing. The objects of the society are the cultivation of a missionary spirit and the collection of funds, and the social, literary and religious culture of its members. The society meets on the second Monday evening of each month in the Evangelical church. Every member is expected to contribute monthly according to ability. After the society gets into good working order they expect to have free public entertainments every three months, consisting of essays, declamations, music, &c.

A BUSY PLACE.—One of the busiest places in Penns Valley is the MILLHEIM MARBLE WORKS. Fine monuments and elegant head stones are made in the best style of the art and in quick succession. The establishment has earned a reputation for good work and fair dealings second to none in this part of the state, and has a wide spread and increasing patronage. tf

PARSONAGE VISITATION.—During the last fortnight there have been occasional visits made at the Reformed parsonage, at Aaronsburg, and packages and groaning baskets have found their way into the kitchen and pantry, to be emptied of their contents, reminding the inmates very forcibly that, after all, they were not angels, but might like the rest of mortals, make good use of the solid comforts of life. And to crown all, a regular invasion by a basket army was made upon the parsonage on last Saturday, in broad day light, while the pastor and his wife had been lured to the other end of town to take dinner. On their return home they found the main apartments of the house in posession of this unceremonious host, guarding two tables loaded with useful articles, too numerons to mention. The whole party looked very serious indeed, and withal as innocent as possible; but we thought we noticed a good deal of merriment and roguishness lurking behind the disguise, as we entered. No doubt they rather enjoyed our confusion and awkward movements. So it goes: there seems no end to trouble: but our only trouble this time was to find suitable room and store away the flour, potatoes and apples, the butter, eggs, lard and hams; the sugar, coffee & fruit; the dry goods, hardware, &c. There were a few little packages, (and who does not know that these sometimes contain the most precious things,) which almost escaped our notice. There was no difficulty in finding room for the contents of these latter,—there is always room left in a preacher's purse. We have received lately from different members of the charge, in a more private way, some of these little packages which are so handy to take along.

Now for all these generous gifts, large and small, which we can assure all supply a pressing want, we feel very grateful, and return our sincerest thanks. And may the good Lord of heaven and earth, whose stewards they are, multiply to these doners twofold of his temporal and spiritual blessings, is the prayer of

The pastor & his wife.

—For reasons satisfactory to us, but which are not proper to state here, we will not reply to the unwarranted and far-fetched attack which a certain Millheim lady made on us in a communication to the Centre Reporter of last week. We have lived here for nearly thirty-nine years, every one ought to know us, and we are willing that our character and reputation shall takecare of themselves "Reden ist Silber Schweigen ist Gold."

—The Bellefonte Democrat gives the following pointed article on the vulgar but common vice of profanity. It is a fit word in season and there are other places than Bellefonte that might profit by the admonition:

An exchange says that under the Act of 1794, any person is liable to arrest for profane swearing. The fine is 67 cents for every profane oath. Now, there are great efforts being made to supress the liquor traffic and vice generally, but we do not hear of any arrests for violations of this law. There is scarcely an evening but profane swearing is indulged in by half grown boys standing on the corners and squirting tobacco juice on the pavements. No one seems to molest them, and yet the practice is one of the most senseless, and at the same time degrading, that we know of. The poor man who inflames himself with lightning is to be pitied, but the man who in his sober senses takes God's Holy Name in vain is wholly destitute of those ennobling traits which constitute the true christian gentleman, and his society should be shunned by all who have respect for themselves and morality. If every young man especially, in Bellefonte, was fined for using profane language it would amount to a good round sum in the course of a year, for we must confess the practice is not exceptional; it is entirely too general. The infidel does not profane God's Holy Name, because he does not believe in God, and because it is shameful for one who professes to believe in Him to do so. The practice should be broken up and the only way we know of to do so, is to enforce the law.

—Those of our subscibers who change their post office addresses by removing to other places will please notify us of the fact. 3t

PICTORIAL ILLUSTRATIONS.—"The usefullness of pictures in a general way is seen by comparing the keenness of observation the general intelligence, the accuracy of knowledge exhibited by children brought up in the midst of an abundance of wholesome illustrated literature, with the comparative dullness of vision and narrowness of information shown by those who have not been so privileged." The foregoing which we take from the "Canada School Journal," truthfully applies to the 3000 Illustrations in Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, in which more than 340 words and terms are illustrated and defined under the following words: Beef, Boiler, Castle, Column, Eye, Horse, Moldings, Phrenology, Ravelin, Ships, Steam Engine, Timbers, as may be seen by examing the Dictionary.

News Miscellany.

A Dwelling House that Ran Away.

From the Territorial Enterprise.

C. L. Johnson's house is situated at the foot of a high bank of Russion river, near Cuffy's Cove, Cal. On Saturday last, while Mrs. Johnson, her boy and a cook were in the house, the high bluff behind the house slid down, carrying the house into the middle of the river and overturning it. The house was choked with water and the three within were drowned. Mrs. Johnson was twenry six years of age and had been married about two years.

Virginia City (Nev.) Enterprise, Feb 5.

A CHINESE POW-WOW.—The Chinese had a grand New Year's pow-wow in their temple in this city yesterday afternoon. Their big god, decked in all the finery of tinsel and gilt paper was mounted behind the altar, on which were smoking roast pigs and burning candles. Worshippers were constantly coming in, saying their prayers, making their bows, contributing their "cash" and passing out. There were no regular services, or rather the services, in the shape of music by a band of men armed with fiddles, drums and gongs went right along. The Celestials all said it was "belly good;" give "plenty good luck next year."

Two Double Funerals in one Family.

The scarlet fever continues its terrible ravages among children in various localities. Last week Mr. Adam Bohn, of Wernersville, Berks county, had a family of four interesing children. Two of the little ones became suddenly ill with scarlet fever, died on the same day, and were buried in one grave. Within a few days the remaining two children were smitten with the same disease, died within a few hours of each other, and were buried together on Sunday last.

A FAT BOY'S DEATH.

David Navarro, Who Weighed 730 Pounds, Succumbs to the Small-Pox.

PITTSBURG, March 7.

David Navarro, the fat boy who was on exhibition at a museum in this city for weeks, died at the Municipal Hospital this morning. The boy's parents refused to have him vaccinated on February 26 and he contracted the small-pox from an attendant at the museum, from which he died. Navarro was born in Rochelie, Ill., June 22 1861. He weighed seven and three-quarters pounds when he was born and seven hundred thirty pounds before death. His measurement was ninety-seven inches around the waist; around the chest, seventy-five inches; thigh, fifty-seven inches; neck, twenty-four inches. Navarro was on exhibition all over the country. He had handsome features and was a pet of the ladies. He received fifty dollars per week. Some weeks ago Miss Lizzie Glendening, of Allegheny, fell violently in love with David and the fat boy reciprocated her affections. They were to be married shortly. His sweetheart spent Sunday with him. David was buried to-day. His coffin was six feet eight inches long, three feet wide and two feet two inches deep.

What Comes of Playing Ghost.

A few nights ago Henry Waters, a youth, whose home is near Youngstown, Ohio, was aroused from his sleep by something in the room. He sat bolt upright in bed. The moon shone through a window, and as young Waters looked towards the light he saw a tall figure in ghostly attire slowly approaching. He spoke, but the ghost made no reply. Then he grasped his revolver, and thus armed and thus emboldened said: "If you're a man I kill you; if you're a ghost this won't hurt you." He pulled the trigger and the report came, but as with quick motion the ghost lifted up an arm Waters heard the bullet rebound against the headboard of the bed. This sent a cold chill through the youth, but he discharged his revolver again and again, and then, wild with fear, hurled at the intruder. At that moment the ghost threw off his disguise, several other parties to the joke came laughing in and lights were struck. The merry-makers had drawn the bullets from the pistol, leaving enough powder to make a report, and at each discharge the play-ghost had thrown a bullet against the headboard. All this the practical jokers expected Waters to enjoy, as he was a jovial fellow, but they found him first dazed, then incoherent, then raving—as his parents fear, a maniac,

POLICY HOLDERS ALARMED.

A New and Interesting Phase of the Graveyard Insurance Business.

READING, March 9.—Quite an excitement prevails in graveyard insurance circles in eastern Pennsylvania, owing to the fact that a large number of suits are to be entered against policy holders in the defunct mutual aid companies that have recently appointed receivers. Receiver McCarroll, of the defunct World company, of Lebanon, is going to sue all responsible policy holders who failed to pay their assessments on deaths prior to the failure of the company. It is intended that the assessments shall be collected under the contract entered into between the company and the assured, and accepted by the asignee of the policy when taking the same. It is believed that McCarroll has the sanction of the highest legal authority in the state, and that this example will be speedily followed by his contemporaries in charge of the other defunct associations. If this can be done there will be a very lively scramble among policy holders all over the state.

AGRICULTURE.

Artificial Heat for Fowls.—During the cold winter months, when the thermometer not only goes far below zero but remains there and we draw closer to our fires or furnaces, exposing ourselves as little as possible to the severe cold, we naturally think more in regard to the use of artificial heat for fowls, and perhaps some of us are inclined to make experiments for ourselves. This is a good idea if properly carried out, but one should understand thoroughly just what he proposes to accomplish by this experiment. At the first glance it seems to be the most natural thing in the world to give fowls the benefit of artificial warmth, on the principle that what is beneficial for man cannot be hurtful for fowls. But let us consider the question for a moment. If your sole object is the fattening of your birds and the production of eggs without regard to the future welfare of your stock, then by all means use artificial heat, for there is no question but that this is desirable in the production of fat and eggs. If you begin this treatment, however, remember that you must not let the fire go out or the heat abate below a certain point, for if this happens your labor will have been thrown away and your stock injured, since fowls are very susceptible to chills and sudden colds after being accustomed to artificial warmth. If you wish to breed from your present stock retain a portion of it in your yards for a longer time than the present winter. It probably would be a mistake to resort to artificial heat, as it surely enervates and renders delicate the stock subjected to its influence, and the result is poor, puny specimens for chicks and a debilitated stock. On the whole, then, for general purposes, it is better not to rely on extraneous heat, but have your fowl houses well protected and as large a proportion of glass in the south and east sides as possible. This will usually furnish sufficient warmth, and even where it is a little cool it is better for the fowls (admitting the loss of a few eggs at the present time), than it is to furnish too great an amount of heat and thereby render your entire stock weak and debilitated. This course would also prevent allowing the fowls any range, as the change from a heated room to the cold air without would be too great a one for safety. The variety, however, makes quite a difference, as a hardy, vigorous fowl like the Plymouth Rock will endure change of all kinds much better than a delicate one like the Spanish. The Plymouth Rock, moreover, does not necessarily demand the range required by the Spanish and Leghorn, and for that reason, as well as many others, is the best breed or variety for general use.

Effect of Comfort on the Quality of the Milk.—The quiet and comfort of the cow has much to do with the quality of her milk. In hot weather, the annoyance produced by flies, and excitement caused by fighting them, makes the night's milk still poorer than it otherwise would be. Chemical analysis has shown a great falling off of fat in the milk of the same cow when chased by a dog. Any unusual excitement of the cow affects the fat in her milk. Ex- of heat and cold also affect the milk. In a case where cows went into a stream in hot weather, and stood several hours in the water above the knee, there was a falling off of the butter product from the same quantity of milk. This is accounted for by the extra food required to keep up the animal heat, in consequence of the heat being carried off by the water.

When we consider the fact that milk is secreted from the blood, we can readily see the effect that must be produced by excitement on the nervous system of the cow. In a case occurring in the city of Albany, N. Y., where a nervous cow was milked by a passionate man, who whipped and otherwise ill-treated her at milking, the milk was given to a child who had been healthy, but, after using this milk, became ill and suffered from intestinal irritation, followed by a fever which seemed to affect the brain and nervous system. This illness was traced directly to the milk of this ill-treated cow.

Preserving Eggs.—Several plans have been tried with more or less success. To preserve eggs, the pores of the shell must be stopped up, for two reasons: to prevent the entrance of the air, and consequent spoiling of the contents; and to prevent the evaporation of the moisture of the egg and a drying up of the contents. Placing the eggs in a net or basket, and plunging them for a few seconds in boiling water, long enough to cook or solidify a thin film of white next to the shell, is successfully practiced in some families, but it would spoil the eggs for sale. Closing the pores by smearing the shell with lard, suet or linseed oil, has been tried with more or less success. Many years ago a patent was taken out for the use of shellac varnish for the same purposes. The care required in the use of the varnish, as each egg must be treated separately, and as a slight uncovered space would allow the egg to spoil besides the discoloration prevented this from coming into use.

Gypsum—Plaster of Paris.—When gypsum, or crude plaster, is heated to 272 degrees it loses the water it naturally contains, and becomes plaster of Paris. Though the operation is called "burning," it takes place at a comparatively low temperature. When mixed with water, it re-unites with that, and becomes chemically the same as it was before, and when re ground is probably as valuable a fertilizer as the "raw stone." We say "probably," as we are not sure that it is quite so soluble as at first, though it is not likely that there is any perceptible difference in this respect. The usual time for applying gypsum on clover is in the spring, when vegetation is just starting.

Whenever you see a hawk fly off with a chicken, follow him at a distance sufficient to allow him to get well a-going with his repast before you molest him, but be sure and frighten him away before he has devoured the whole chicken. Then set your steel trap where you find your chicken, covering it well with feathers for bait, and, in a few minutes after you are out of sight, the unsuspecting pirate will pounce down and take possession of that trap in a way that will allow you to carry him home at your leisure.

Pruning the Norway Spruce.—Pruning may be done for very opposite ends. If the spruce is planted as a hedge or screen, then it needs to be dwarted rather than encourage to grow upward. Cutting back the new growth, before it has yet hardened, is generally done in June; this has the effect to keep the tree in a dwarf, compact form. If the object is merely to regulate the shape, by removing or shortening certain branches, it may be done in autumn at any time before severe weather comes. For cutting away the lower limbs of a Norway spruce, or other evergreen, there is no one "proper time."

Corn Fodder.—Well-cured corn fodder has a feeding value almost equal to hay, and yet this fact is only appreciated by a few farmers. Cut up fine—butts and all—and fed with bran and corn meal, it is first rate provender; nor should it be forgotten that the butts are the best part.

DOMESTIC.

Black Bean Soup.—Wash and soak over night in tepid water one pint of black beans. In the morning add four quarts of cold water, a ham bone, and boil slowly till the beans are soft, replenishing the water as it boils away. Rub the beans through a colander, mashing them, and return to the kettle, having taken out the ham bone. Chop two hard boiled eggs, and slice one lemon very thin, add a pinch of red pepper and salt if the ham bone has not made it salt enough. If you wish, you can mould a quarter of a pound of sausage meat into small balls the size of a marble and throw them into the soup for forcemeat balls, and cook about ten minutes. You should have three quarts of soup for this quantity of beans, and it should have the thickness of turtle soup. Black beans are 9 cents a pint, lemons are 2 cents a piece, two eggs cost 6 cents; so that the delicious and nourishing dish need cost but 20 cents, when eggs are near the highest. Instead of the ham bone, any meat bone can be used, or a pig's foot or calf's foot, skinned, make a very rich soup of this foundation. But it requires no meat bone of any description provided you salt it freely.

Being asked concerning the Oil, Mr. Aug. Kickbush informed the questioner that St. Jacob's Oil had proved an excellent and most useful remedy in every family that had used it. A large majority of cases pronounced incurable have been entirely cured.

The culture of osier willows is a specialty that pays only under favorable circumstances, such as a suitable location and soil and a steady market for them. The demand is unsteady and very limited, and the soil suitable is low, moist, wet ground. They can be raised most profitably on the edges of ditches made to drain swamps; the cuttings are planted along the ditches on the soil or muck thrown out and may be ready for gathering the third year, when the roots throw up a large amount of shoots. The kind of willow grown is a shrub and not a tree, and throws up a cluster of thin stems, which grow to the height of six to ten feet. These willows make excellent bands for binding corn-stalks.

Growth of Timber.—As the result of observation, and from the testimony of reliable men the following is about the average growth in twelve years of the leading desirable varieties of timber, when planted in belts or groves and cultivated: White maple, one foot in diameter and 30 feet high; ash, leaf maple or box elder, one foot in diameter and 20 feet high; white willow, one and a half feet in diameter and 50 feet high; yellow willow, one a half feet in diameter and 34 feet high; Lombardy poplar, 10 inches in diameter and 40 feet high; blue and white ash 10 inches in diameter and 25 feet high; black walnut and butternut, 10 inches in diameter and 20 feet high.

[Mt. Clemens, (Mich.) True Record.]

W. T. Lee, Esq., of this paper says: Being convinced of the efficacy of St. Jacob's Oil in curing rheumatism. I have no hesitancy in recommending it.

To Keep Nails From Rusting.—When nials begin to rust, it is almost impossible to stop them from becoming eaten away in a very short time; in this case prevention is better than cure. Mix one pint of linseed oil with two ounces of black lead, stirring until the whole is thoroughly incorporated; heat the nails red hot and steep them in the mixture. They should then be well drained and shaken up in an old nail-bag until dry. The linseed oil and black lead cover them with a film of varnish which is impervious to wet. The above proportions will serve for an almost indefinite quantity.

Salt or Milk Rising Bread.—Take 1 cup of sweet milk, two of boiling water, and a tablespoonful of salt. While hot stir in enough corn meal to make a thin batter; let it stand till cool, Add enough flour to thicken well and set in a warm place, beating it up occasionally to make it rise better. After this yeast has risen sufficiently add flour and knead into loaves; place them into pans to rise again, and bake. In making up the second time put a little more salt in, as the quantity put in the yeast is scarcely sufficient to season the bread.

One Remedy for One Dollar.—There is but one way to cure baldness, and that is by using Carboline, a deodorized extract of petroleum, the natural petoleum hair renewer. It will positively do the work and it is the only article that will.

Treatment of Soft Corns.—A small piece of sal-amoniac dissolved in two tablespoonfuls spirits of wine, and the same quantity of water. Saturate a small piece of sponge or linen rag, and place it between the toes, changing it twice a day. This will cause the skin to harden, and the corn may be easily extracted. A good remedy for soft corns is common chalk rubbed on the corn every day, and a piece of cotton wool worn between the corns affected, to prevent pressure; the chalk appears to dry up the corn.

No Woman Need Suffer

when Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure can be so easily obtained and so safely used.

Pork Sausages.—Have two thirds lean and one third fat pork, and chop very fine. Season with three ounces of salt and one ounce and a half of pepper to every ten pounds of meat, with powdered sage to suit the taste. Warm the meat so that you can mix it well with your hands. Mix it well, and pack in jars. When used, do it up in small cakes, and fry in butter or alone. It should be kept where it is cool, but not damp. Sausages made in this way are very nice for breakfast.

Steamed Pudding.—Two eggs, two teacupfuls of sour milk, one teaspoonful of soda, a little salt, flour enough to make it quite thick, or it will be heavy. Beat this smooth. Add cherries, raspberries, currants, or any dried fruit you may have. Steam two hours, taking care that the water is kept over the pudding or bag all the time, and that it does not stop boiling. Eat with cream and sugar, hard sauce or any liquid sauce you may prefer.

After all, a gentle purgative is the best means for curing headache, liver complaint, biliousness, etc. Take "Sellers' Liver Pills."

Steam Pipes.—As regards the best method of protecting steam pipes, flocculent or fibrous materials, which are poor heat conductors, are to be preferred, and, if possible, an air space should be left between the pipe and the inner wall of the covering. Hair, felt, loosely felted wool, shoddy, so called mineral wool, asbestos, cork scraps, etc., are all good non-conductors. A trench about the pipe filled with sawdust, answers very well for underground pipes.

HUMOROUS.

An Austin House couple, belonging to the highest circle, that had not been married very long, were overheard conversing a few evenings ago. "George, you seem to have grown cold and indifferent. Do you never think of those happy strolls we used to take when we were only engaged?" "Yes," he snarled, "I think of those happy days before we were married every time you open your potato trap."

The Age of Miracles

is past, and Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" will not raise the dead, will not cure you if your lungs are almost wasted by consumption. It is, however, unsurpassed both as a pectoral and alterative, and will cure obstinate and severe diseases of the throat and lungs, coughs, and bronchial affections. By virtue of its wonderful alterative properties it cleanses and enriches the blood, cures pimples, blotches, and eruptions, and causes even great eating ulcers to heal.

There is one thing about sewing on buttons. A man may not be able to do the job as quickly as a woman and he may miss the eye of the button and run the needle into his thumb nine jabs out of ten, but when he gets the task completed and breaks off the thread with a jerk, you may be sure that button will be on his pantaloons long after they are worn through at the knees.

At a police court: "Prisoner, you are accused of uttering seditious cries at two o'clock this morning. What have you to say?" "I did, your honor, but, you see it was a pretty lonely neighborhood, and there have been a good many street robberies of late, and (with a fascinating smile), I knew I could depend on the patriotic zeal of the police!"

The story is told of a minister who said, when one of his flock wept over the financial deficit in connection with a Christian enterprise: "My dear friend, never mind the tears; this thing can't be run by water!" This is a valuable suggestion to some who give sympathy much more easily than they give money.

Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," for all those weaknesses peculiar to women, is an unequalled remedy. Distressing backache and "bearing down" sensations yield to its strength-giving properties. By druggists.

The Marquis of Bute started a daily paper in Wales, and, after sinking about $400,000 in the concern, shut up the shop. As a Marquis he is all right, but in journalism the Bute is on the other leg.

Mrs. Cleanwell is what may be called pizen nice. Cleanwell says when he caught his better half washing off the Easter eggs he had paid half a dollar apiece for, he became convinced that there was such a thing as being too neat.

A couple of ladies were walking in a cemetery, when one of them pointed to a lovely vale and said: "There's the spot where I hope to be buried, if my life be spared."

Troublesome Children,

that are always wetting their beds ought not to be scolded and punished for what they cannot help. They need a medicine having a tonic effect on the kidneys and the urinary organs. Such a medicine is Kidney-Wort. It has specific action. Do not fail to get it for them.—Exchange.

"Have some milk this morning?" asked the milkman of Toozer, who stood at the bank door. "No, not this milk, some udder milk," said the little one. And the milkman walked a chalk line away from the house.

Sam, you are not honest. Why do you put all the good peaches on the top of the measure, and the little ones below?" "Same reason, sah, dat make de front of your house marble, and de back gate chiefly slop bar'l, sah."

Colorless and Cold.—A young girl deeply regretted that she was so colorless and cold. Her face was too white, and her hands and feet felt as though the blood did not circulate. After one bottle of Hop Bitters had been taken she was the rosiest and healthiest girl in the town, with a vivacity and cheerfulness of mind gratifying to her friends.

"50,000 Persons Cured,"

is the glorious record of "Anakesis," and none but those afflicted with piles, that most painful and persistent of all diseases, will fully understand or appreciate the significance of such an announcement. Only those who have wasted time, money and health on ointments, lotions, electuaries and the innumerable worse than useless nostrums and catch-pennies put forth to deceive the ignorant, or what is even more unsatisfactory, suffered from the empirical and routine practice of careless or ignorant doctors, can realize how great a boon an infallible remedy for piles must be, or how great a benefactor to the human race the discoverer, Dr. Silsbee is. Anakesis is not the chance blunder of inexperience, but the result of 40 years' practice and study of Piles by an accomplished and scientific physician. It is now endorsed by the most intelligent physicians of all schools and is admitted to be the nearest to an infallible remedy known. It is simple, safe and easy of application, relieves pain at once, helps up the sensitive tumors, soothes, compresses and medicates the diseased parts and ultimately cures the worst cases, and any one who will follow the advice of Dr. Silsbee in the printed circular need never have Piles again. It is the only proprietary medicine we ever saw that not only cures but tells its customers how to prevent the disease. Sufferers with Piles should write to P. Time Testers and Burden Bearers.

From time immemorial the horse has been man's best friend. But a few years back we can all remember the comparatively little attention paid to this most indispensable of animals. We say comparatively little attention, for the horse was as well groomed, and certainly as well fed, as now; and at those great gatherings—agricultural shows—you would see the pride of the county and State stables and farms assembled. But there was a conspicuous want of noble draught horses, and as for speeders—well, 2:40 was the great ultimate limit that owners in those days desired to strive for. But now a 2:40 animal is esteemed a fair roadster, and fine animals only deserve the name when they can shade the first quarter of the third minute. There have been immense strides forward in the right development of horseflesh in the civilized countries of the world, as shown by the time-records of the racers and draught capacity of the humbler, but really more useful, work-horse. Many things have conspired to effect this desirable end, chief among which have been the intelligent care and consideration bestowed upon the animal in his every relation—in a word, upon the breeding. And this has not failed to include a very serious modification of the old methods of treatment, doing away, in many cases, with the inhuman and really savage plans pursued in the eradication of even simple disorders and ailments, and substituting rational measures of relief instead. A prominent factor of this reform, and one indorsed by owners, breeders, farmers and stockmen the country over, is St. Jacobs Oil, recognized by all who have used it as an exceptionally good remedy for the ailments of the horse and stock generally, meeting more indications for its use and effecting far better results than any article of a curative or remedial nature ever introduced. Such breeders and horsemen as Aristides Welch, Esq., of Erdenheim, near Philadelphia; Mike Goodin, Esq., Belmont Park, Pa.; Calvin M. Priest, formerly in charge of Mr. Robert Bonner's stock, New York; and thousands of others throughout the country, who could be named, are on the list of unqualified endorsers of the efficacy of St. Jacobs Oil.

HEALTH IS WEALTH.
HEALTH OF BODY is WEALTH of MIND.
Radway's
SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT.

Pure blood makes sound flesh, strong bone and a clear skin. If you would have your flesh firm, your bones sound without caries, and your complexion fair, use Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent.

A remedy composed of ingredients of extraordinary medical properties essential to purify, heal, repair and invigorate the broken-down and wasted body—QUICK, PLEASANT, SAFE and PERMANENT in its treatment and cure.

No matter by what name the complaint may be designated, whether it be Scrofula, Consumption, Syphilis, Ulcers, Sores, Tumors, Boils, Erysipelas, or Salt-Rheum, diseases of the Lungs, Kidneys, Bladder, Womb, Skin, Liver, Stomach or Bowels, either chronic or constitutional, the virus of the disease is in the BLOOD which supplies the waste, and builds and repairs these organs and wasted tissues of the system. If the blood is unhealthy, the process of repair must be unsound.

The Sarsaparillian Resolvent not only is a compensating remedy, but secures the harmonious action of each of the organs. It establishes throughout the entire system functional harmony, and supplies the blood-vessels with a pure and healthy current of new life. The skin, after a few days use of the Sarsaparillian, becomes clear and beautiful. Pimples, Blotches, Black Spots and Skin Eruptions are removed; Sores and Ulcers soon cured. Persons suffering from Scrofula, Eruptive Diseases of the Eyes, Mouth, Ears, Legs, Throat and Glands, that have accumulated and spread, either from uncured diseases or mercury, or from the use of Corrosive Sublimate, may rely upon a cure if the Sarsaparillian is continued a sufficient time to make its impression on the system.

One bottle contains more of the active principle of medicines than any other preparation. Taken in Teaspoonful Doses, while others require five or six times as much. One Dollar Per Bottle.

MINUTE REMEDY.
Only requires minutes not hours to relieve pain and cure acute disease.

RADWAY'S
Ready Relief,
in from one to twenty minutes, never fails to relieve PAIN with one thorough application; no matter how violent or excruciating the pain the Rheumatic, Bed-ridden, Infirm, Crippled, Nervous, Neuralgic or prostrated with disease may suffer, RADWAY'S READY RELIEF will afford instant ease.

Inflammation of the Kidneys, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Bowels, Congestion of the Lungs, Sore Throat, Difficult Breathing, Palpitation of the Heart, Hysterics, Croup, Diphtheria, Catarrh, Influenza, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Cold Chills, Ague Chills, Chilblains, and Frost Bites, Bruises, Summer Complaints, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Coughs, Colds, Sprains, Pains in the Chest, Back or Limbs are instantly relieved.

Fever and Ague.
FEVER and AGUE cured for 50 cents. There is not a remedial agent in this world that will cure Fever and Ague, and other Malarious, Bilious, Scarlet, Typhoid, Yellow and other fevers (aided by Radway's Pills) so quickly as RADWAY'S READY RELIEF.

It will in a few moments, when taken according to directions, cure Cramps, Spasms, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Colic, Wind in the Bowels, and all Internal Pains.

Travelers should always carry a bottle of Radway's Ready Relief with them. A few drops in water will prevent sickness or pains from change of water. It is better than French brandy or bitters as a stimulant.

Miners and Lumbermen should always be provided with it.

CAUTION.
All remedial agents capable of destroying life by an overdose should be avoided. Morphine, opium, strychnine, arnica, hyosciamus, and other powerful remedies, does at certain times, in very small doses, relieve the patient during their action in the system. But perhaps the second dose, if repeated, may aggravate and increase the suffering, and another dose cause death. There is no necessity for using these uncertain agents when a positive remedy like Radway's Ready Relief will stop the most excruciating pain quicker, without entailing the least difficulty in either infant or adult.

THE TRUE RELIEF.
RADWAY'S READY RELIEF is the only remedial agent in vogue that will instantly stop pain.
Fifty Cents Per Bottle.
